

Andrzej Bartoszewicz (PL)

Short Bio: Andrzej Bartoszewicz received the M.Sc. degree in 1987 and the Ph.D. degree in 1993 both from Technical University of Lodz, Poland. Then he obtained the degree of “doktor habilitowany” in control engineering and robotics from Academy of Mining and Metallurgy in Cracow, Poland. He was visiting scholar at Purdue University, West Lafayette, In., USA and at Strathclyde University, Glasgow, UK. Then for one year he was at University of Leicester, UK. Currently he is Professor at Technical University of Lodz, head of Electric Drive and Industrial Automation Group and director of Institute of Automatic Control. He has published three monographs and over 300 papers, primarily in the fields of sliding mode control, congestion control in data transmission networks and supply chain management. He received three best paper awards at international conferences. Professor Andrzej Bartoszewicz has recently been elected a corresponding member of the Polish Academy of Sciences.